SUBJECT: Distinctive Badge for the U. S. Army Intelligence Agency

Commander
US Army Intelligence Agency
Fort Meade, Maryland 20755

1. A distinctive badge for the U. S. Army Intelligence Agency is authorized. The description and symbolism of the design are as follows:

DESCRIPTION

A gold color metal and enamel device 1 3/16 inches in height overall consisting of a 1777-1780 Continental Dragoon's gold helmet (blue band, white crest and black visor) bearing a silver gray heraldic rose all in front of and extending below in base, a red enamel disc within a black enamel annulet inscribed at the top "THE SILENT WARRIOR" in gold letters.

SYMBOLISM

Oriental blue and silver gray are the colors used for Military Intelligence. The rose, suggested by the branch insignia, is emblematic of secrecy. The color red alludes to courage and the color black to the unknown. The helmet refers to Major Benjamin Tallmadge's Troop of Continental Dragoons and their role as "eyes" of the military in probing the unknown, seeking to determine conditions and tactical movements and, in general, "harassment" of the enemy. All of these functions allude to the modern military intelligence mission.

2. The distinctive badge will be worn as prescribed in AR 670-5.
